Dear (b) (4):

On (b) (4), EPA issued a testing failure notice for a (b) (4) window. EPA received additional information from your certification body (b) (4). The tested product, an air-fill product, was tested using equipment designed for argon-fill products and showed the product failing the requirement. The product should not have been evaluated against requirements for argon-fill products, and was referred to EPA as a failure in error. The certification body determined that model (b) (4) meets ENERGY STAR requirements.

As a result, this case has been closed. This model will remain certified and no further action is needed.
